

Spring Is at the Door

Text by Nora Hopper (1871-1906) [Br], from Songs of the Morning
Set by Roger Quilter (1877-1953) [Br], op. 18, #4

The Spring is at the door:
[ðʌ sprɪŋ ɪz æt ðʌ dɔː]

She bears a golden store,
Her maund with yellow daffodils runneth o'er.

Her rosy feet are bare,
The wind is in her hair,
And O her eyes are April eyes, very fair.

After her footsteps follow
The mullein and the mallow;
She scatters golden powder on the willow.

She brings the crocus white,
And golden aconite:
She brings desire and doubting and delight.
